

Students are to read the background information about Anne Bradstreet on page 89 and produce Cornell Notes.

TEKS10.24A&B-Students will produce Cornell Notes that summarize the information presented.

Anne Bradstreet	Anne Bradstreet was the first published _____ in America—A remarkable accomplishment considering that writing was thought _____ for a _____ at that time.
From England to the New World	Anne _____ was born and raised in _____. At age _____, Anne married Simon Bradstreet, a friend of the family. Two years later, Anne, her husband, and her _____ boarded the _____ as members of John Winthrop’s party and sailed to _____ to join the Puritan community there. At first, Bradstreet was appalled by the _____ life of the settlement, but she soon _____. She wrote, “I changed my condition and was married, and came into this _____, where I found a new _____ and new _____, at which my heart rose [reacted angrily]. But after I was convinced it was the way of _____, I submitted to it and joined to the church at _____.” In _____, Bradstreet began to write _____. At first, she imitated the lofty style of established _____ poets. As a result, her early _____ contain many wooden lines and do not reveal her deeper _____. Bradstreet wrote for her own satisfaction and shared her poems only with her _____ and _____. Nonetheless, her brother-in-law, the Reverend John Woodbridge, took _____ of her poems to _____ without her knowledge and had them _____ as The Tenth Muse Lately Sprung Up in America. (The _____ Muses were ancient Greek goddesses who inspired _____ and _____.)
A Change of Style	When Bradstreet saw The Tenth Muse in print, she was _____ with her work and stopped writing _____ verse. Instead, she started writing poetry about her _____ as a woman in seventeenth-century _____. Bradstreet’s best poems explore her _____ for her husband, her _____ at the death of her parents, and her _____ to accept the losses she suffered. _____ years after Bradstreet’s death, an _____ edition of The Tenth Muse appeared under the new title Several Poems Compiled with Great Variety of Wit and Learning.
SUMMARY: Do you believe that Anne Bradstreet deserves to be famous for her poems? Why or why not? Explain. _____ _____ _____ _____ _____ _____	