

Who's Who In Padua

Act 1 introduces a number of characters, several are in love, some adopt disguises, and some have particular relationships with others.

Draw a diagram to show as clearly as possible who's who, who's pretending to be someone else, and the chief relationships among the characters.

The list of characters at the beginning of the play will help you. It should take up the whole page and be easy to read.

It should be exceptionally neat and attractive. Use white, unlined paper or the computer. Inspiration is a good program for making charts etc.